«International and Comparative Social Policy» as a minor or specialisation master programme takes a primarily global and comparative approach as it examines various sociological and social policy issues and themes. What challenges are arising from the growing internationalisation of business, politics, culture and other aspects of society? How to deal with the growth of the world population and people's increasing longevity? What inequalities and inter-relationships exist between different world regions? What is the role of social players in these processes? This minor or specialisation programme teaches students the skills to be able to analyse social inter-relationships and developments.
